THIS IS AN IMPORTANT DOCUMENT WHICH SHOULD BE KEPT IN A SECURE PLACE OR WITH A SOLICITOR.

DO REMEMBER TO TELL YOUR EXECUTOR(S) AND FAMILY MEMBERS WHERE IT IS KEPT.

If you're reading this I hope you find it helps.

I've named you as executor(s) in my Will and have tried to be organised with my personal finances and records to make this as easy as possible for you.

You'll need to register my death – the doctor certifying the death will give you a certificate that then needs to go to the Registrar. Ask the Registrar for half a dozen copies of the death certificate (there will be a charge) – that will make things easier later (it's also cheaper to get the additional copies there and then rather than pay more when you realise that you need another copy!).

After you've registered my death you'll be given a unique reference number by the Registrar. You can use this to access the Government's 'Tell Us Once' service that will enable you to inform all of the various State organisations such as HMRC, Passport Office, DVLA and the local council in one go. For information on this service, you can ask your Registrar or visit: gov.uk/after-a-death/organisations-you-need-to-contact-and-tell-us-once

If I have any bank or building society current accounts with you in our joint name, they will simply revert to your name on my death you just need to register my death with the firms concerned.

If I have accounts in my sole name, you'll need to notify the banks and/or building societies of my death and send a copy of my death certificate. If there is a provider managing my estate for you, they'll do this - you'll just need to provide them with these details.

You have all the password details to be able to close these down.	These are kept in the online password vault C	OR separately in/with:

The best way to deal with these accounts is to get the younger members of the family to check on close down arrangements – they do change. They can always be researched by Googling: "How to close a account".

LOOK OUT FOR SCAMMERS!

It is likely that my death will become widely known. Scammers may try to call you and ask you to give away personal details. Just remember that none of the companies we deal with will ever call you or email you asking for details that would allow them to access our accounts. Just put the phone down.
